

FURNISHES SUPPLIES FOR THE NEW HOTEL

In connection with the construction of the new Aekel building, now occupied by the Jefferson hotel, no firm figures more prominently than does the Arizona Hardware Supply Company of this city. This well-known company shares directly or indirectly in the construction of practically every high class building job in Arizona and there is no doubt that as its splendid facilities for taking care of the trade become more widely known that its business will continue to increase proportionably.

The Arizona Hardware Supply company was established here in 1910 and under the energetic management of Henry K. Behn, soon became an acknowledged headquarters for builders supplies and heavy hardware. In addition to its large stock of rebar, forcing bars, structural steel, metal lath, etc., it specializes on contractors machinery, such as concrete mixers, etc. It also is state agent for many standard lines of machinery and tools, office equipment, etc., and is steadily increasing its general jobbing business in all departments. Conveniently located at the corner of Third avenue and Jackson street, its large warehouses contain a most complete and widely diversified stock. Few persons, other than those who are customers of this concern, realize that Phoenix numbers among its business houses a company handling and carrying in stock such a large and comprehensive line of supplies and machinery.

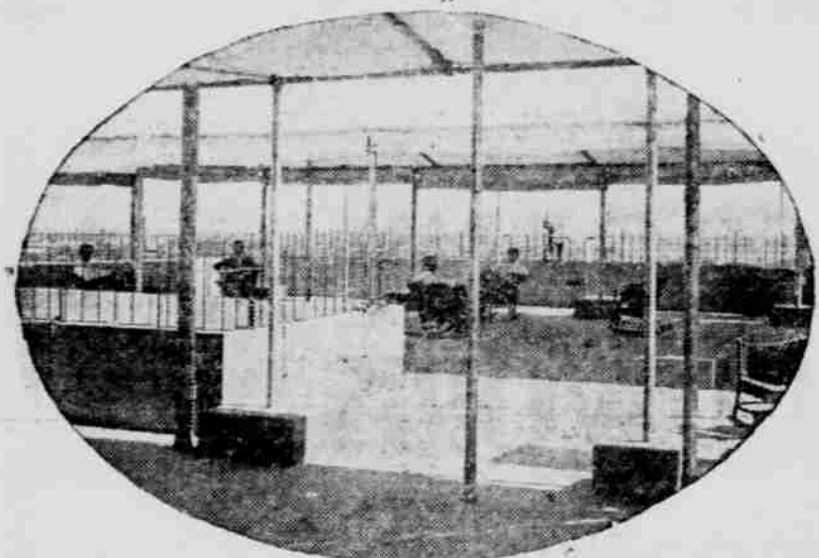

TALBOT & HUBBARD FURNISH HARDWARE

An important item in the construction of a high class hotel building is the builders and the furnishing hardware. This item reached large proportions in the Jefferson Hotel and were furnished by the Talbot and Hubbard company, a Phoenix firm, and one of the best known in the state of Arizona in the builders hardware line. The fittings and hardware furnishings from the basement to the roof garden were all selected under the personal supervision of C. E. Miller of the firm, and the richness of the effects is one of the first things noticed by visitors at the hotel. They add to the great beauty of the finished effect of this new hotel, of which Phoenix is so proud.

KIRCHER TAKES CARE OF THE DECORATIONS

For many years H. Kircher has been recognized in Phoenix as one of the best interior decorators in the United States. That was why he was selected to do the interior decoration and lobby decorations for the new Jefferson Hotel building. The work is beautiful and immediately commands the attention of every visitor.

Mr. Kircher has offices at 22 Broadway. He has done practically all the high class painting decoration work in the city's best buildings, among which are the Adams hotel, Gass Brothers' new chop house, the Sugar Bowl, the Wolpe company and the Eisele home in Los Olivos.

Happenings At Iron Springs News Of Summer Vacation Colony

At last the camp is fast assuming its usual summer excitement and is filling with a much greater speed than before the fourth of July. Every train in leaving fresh workers after the coolness of the mountain climes in which Iron Springs resides itself. The altitude that has prevailed over the camp is lifting rapidly and the people are coming to life again. The dances are being attended better, especially by the older folks, and at every train the usual summer crowd of curious Iron Springs' congregate to see who goes through. Monday night an impromptu dance was held at the pavilion, at which a good number of the camp's inhabitants were present. A milestone in the road of the season's activities is the fact that the regular Wednesday afternoon social affairs begins tomorrow and will be held every Wednesday at the pavilion. Cards will be the main amusement, but those who do not wish to play can see on their fancy work or darn their children's socks.

J. Akire surprised his wife and her parents by arriving unexpectedly on the evening train last Friday. He spent Saturday and Sunday in camp, returning to Phoenix Sunday evening. Doctor Bennett came up Friday evening on the late train and remained in camp Saturday and Sunday, returning on the 5 o'clock train. Lewis Hunt also arrived on the late train Friday night. He returned on the southbound train Sunday evening. The noon train on Saturday carried a large number of the Iron Springs folk to Prescott on shopping expeditions. Those who spent the afternoon in the Mile High city were Mrs. W. K. James, Miss Edith James, Mrs. Latham, Mrs. Walter Bennett, Miss Marion Bennett and Mrs. Mosler.

About 4:15 Saturday afternoon the camp's afternoon solitude was broken by the noise of an automobile entering camp. It was the C. D. Morris motor party on their way back to Phoenix from the coast, where they had visited both fairs and spent several days in Los Angeles. In their Cadillac they spent four days in touring the coast cities. They spent Sunday in camp, leaving for Phoenix in the evening. The party consisted of C. D. Morris, Clayton Morris, Boris Doris and Burdette Doris, a cousin of the family.

The regular Saturday night arrivals in the form of tired husbands were represented this week by Mr. C. B. Laird, Judge Lewis, C. M. Scott, Robert A. Young and Mr. Fagan. The usual bunch of sympathetic wives greeted them.

Mr. and Mrs. David Goldberg were the sole arrivals from Phoenix on the Sunday train.

C. M. Scott left for Phoenix on the evening train Sunday. Ernest Lewis also departed for home Sunday evening, accompanied by Dr. Bennett and J. Akire.

Sunday school was held at the pavilion Sunday morning, under the supervision of Miss Edith Evans. It was a decided success, as twenty-one pupils put in appearances. Miss Evans taught the older and Miss Mayte Foster the primary class. In the evening services were held. Rev. Shires of the Prescott Episcopal church presided.

A. C. McQueen and Rev. Shires arrived on the 5 o'clock train from Prescott Sunday evening.

Donald Scott and Jack Griffen spent Monday afternoon in Prescott.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter went over to Prescott on the 12:54 Monday. Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Ollis Young and Mrs. H. S. Chandler went through Monday on their way to Flagstaff, where they took a prominent part in the unveiling ceremonies of the monument given by the Pioneer Women of Arizona. Mrs. Will Barnes and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Talbot left Tues-

FURNITURE FURNISHED BY H. G. EDWARDS

The H. G. Edwards Furniture company furnished the Jefferson Hotel throughout, from the least to the greatest item in furnishings. On one item alone there was $7,500 worth of Smith carpets. H. G. Edwards is the proprietor. Six years ago he purchased the Wilson furniture establishment and two years later moved the business to its present location, Second and Adams street, where it has enjoyed a constant growth under the proprietor's careful attention. The store had purposed to use the first two floors of the Aekel building, but the entering of the hotel plans prevented that and the furniture store will remain in its present location.

Among the nationally known lines exclusively carried by this establishment are Guernsey refrigerators, Peninsula gas, wood and coal ranges, Smith's and Sloan's celebrated carpets and rugs.

PERFECT PLUMBING INSTALLED BY DALE

To L. F. Dale, well known local plumber, was given the contract for this important part of the work of the Jefferson hotel. Mr. Aekel stated that Mr. Dale's work was perfect throughout and that the plumbing of the Jefferson was of the highest type and none better in any building in the southwest.

Mr. Dale has been in business in Phoenix for the past three years and has made a strong record with plumbing and heating contracts. His shops are at 209 West Washington street. Many of the principal buildings of recent construction in Phoenix contain plumbing installed by T. L. Dale. They include the new Walker block at First avenue and Washington streets, the Noll building on North First avenue, the Denver rooming house, Powers apartments and day to attend the unveiling ceremony. Mrs. W. K. James and daughter, Edith, left Monday night for Los Angeles, where they will spend several weeks visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Patton arrived overland in their Buick, driven by their son, Glenn, Tuesday morning. They intend remaining several weeks. Fred Tatum and the Hildreths motored over from Prescott on Tuesday on a picnic. They returned in the evening.

Charles Ketchum went to Prescott Tuesday afternoon on a business trip.

The regular Tuesday evening dance was well attended by both the younger and older elements of the camp.

Chandler News Notes

SERVICES FOR KOCH BOY

Funeral services were held Monday morning at nine o'clock at St. Mary's Catholic church, Phoenix, over the remains of Louis E. Koch, the eleven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Koch. The services consisted of high mass and the usual prayers for the dead, and were attended by many friends from Chandler, Mesa, and Phoenix. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. The pallbearers were Geo. T. Penbody, P. M. James, G. L. Hollands, Oris Holdren, Wayne Heffner, Ernest Koch, Jr., and Ernest J. Koch.

The body will be sent to Oakland,

Calif., for burial in the family plot. Louis E. Koch was born at Alamos, Mexico, in 1903. Notwithstanding the short span of his life he traveled extensively with his parents in Mexico, the family later removing to Los Angeles at the outbreak of the Mexican revolution.

One of the characteristics of the little fellow was that he loved the last place of his residence—Chandler. He seemed more happy here and secured more enjoyment out of life in Chandler than any place else he had ever been. His demise has left an aching void among his many friends, young and old, who esteemed him for his sterling qualities and noble strength of mind.

PERSONALS

W. J. Lemke and R. T. Penbody were Phoenix business visitors Tuesday.

Ferry L. Cole of Maricopa was in Chandler on business Wednesday.

C. E. Williams who has been visiting his son, Delmer Williams, and family for several months, left this week via auto for his home in Selma, Calif.
